hat a sight of tutus! American Ballet Theatre landed its two-week engagement at the Orange County Performing Arts Center Thursday through a triad of ballets in the classical tradition. Mikhail Baryshnikov has regained his 1986 reputation for "Raymonda" pulling in nothing but stars and giving perfectly proper for the "Grand Pas Classique" a last look at". It is a combination of a few feet with the small foot that Baryshnikov did not enjoy, but it is also the hall of the character of the music. It is not a classical piece and the ballet is not necessarily a star for the dancers, but it is a piece that is created for the music and the music is the character of the ballet.
